

Transgender Day of Resilience & Resistance

Tuesday November 17, 2015
7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

We shall gather at Durham Central Park (501 Foster St, Durham, NC 27701) at the covered pavilion at 7pm. Rev. Mykal Slack will lead us in word and song to remind us why we gather.

The “Ladies of the T” group at Triangle Empowerment Center will guide us in honoring and memorializing those who have succumbed to anti-transgender hatred and prejudice

From there we will step off for a candle light vigil along Hunt Street to the LGBTQ Center of Durham (114 Hunt Street, Durham NC 27701). We will close out the evening with final words from Rev. Brendan Moore and light refreshments inside at the LGBTQ Center of Durham.

Let us show tribute to those we have lost and those who are lighting the way to increased acceptance and visibility for our transgender community.

This is a free community event

Join with us to stop the hate, stop the violence, and to light up the night!
